

An Interesting Thought!

Have you ever looked back at your life and realised God has been there, even when you didn't realise it at the time? Recently, I sat back and took a look at my own life, wondering where He had been at work. People often criticise me for choosing to see God's intervention, when things may have turned out the same way. But I know God loves and cares for everyone. All things happen for a reason. For example, I've lost count of the number of times I've gone past road accidents which occurred only a few minutes before-hand. On the two occasions that I did get hit off my motorbikes, I was not at fault. I choose to believe that God protected me from being involved in those I passed, and prevented serious injury when I was hit off, as my injuries were relatively minor. Yes, these things happen, but I found out why those accidents happened to me. It was to help me talk to teenagers.

This is a picture of my GPZ (305cc of brute power!). I never found out what the top speed was, but I understand that it would cruise quite happily at 100mph.

A lot of youngsters up and down the country think it's glamorous to ride a motorbike. Because I'm a female, and rode a Kawasaki GPZ 305, they are interested in what I have to say. Ok so there are a lot bigger motorbikes out there, but anything over 125cc will go fast enough for your guardian angels to fall off!! I didn't know that I would be involved in youth work when I had my motorbikes. At that time I couldn't drive a car - I'd failed my driving test twice, and I needed transport for job interviews. So although some of the experiences I went through on my motorbikes were horrible at the time, (and I'm not just talking about the accidents either) they made me a stronger person, and gave me an interesting discussion topic. Yes it could all be coincidence that my life has turned out this way, but can you be sure? There are lots of things, both good and bad, that have happened to me, where I choose to believe God has been at work - far too many to mention here. God will use the experiences we go through in our daily lives, if you let Him. Even when life seems rotten, He is there. You might not see it at the time, but maybe, years later, you will see why they happened to you. If you want to know more about what God has done in both of our lives, send us an e-mail, or keep popping back to this page. It will change every time we feel inspired by God.
